Mobile Counseling

Racism, anti-Semitism, homophobia – inhuman attitudes and incidents have long been part of everyday life and pose permanent challenges to society. The Mobile Counseling Lower Saxony is the contact for all those who are confronted with this ideology or who are looking for support in local democratization processes. The consultation is confidential, unbureaucratic, free of charge, on-site and, if desired, anonymous. The focus is always to “help people help themselves”. We work in a process-oriented manner and try to strengthen the ability of the democratic parties involved to act and to network them in a demand-oriented manner.

Professional and Systemic Consultation

Anti-Semitic insults at schools, the racist youth coach at the local soccer club, swastika graffiti at bus stops, right-wing stickers and graffiti in the city, or a planned march by a right-wing extremist party: the reasons that motivate people to make use of the services of Mobile Counseling Lower Saxony are manifold. The staff work together with the affected parties to develop solutions and support their implementation with consultation, support, and external expertise.

Accompany and Qualify

An acute crisis situation is not always necessary to take action. Mobile Counseling Lower Saxony also accompanies coalitions, organizations, institutions or individuals who want to prevent misanthropic attitudes and activities. This includes the development of long-term strategies against right-wing extremist tendencies, the development of prevention concepts or support in the networking of various parties.

Educate and Inform

For all interested parties, Mobile Counseling Lower Saxony offers, for example, lectures, seminars, workshops and advanced training on current issues, problems and developments in the subjects. Our employees are available as contact persons for all questions, without complications and, if desired, anonymously. We also document and analyze right-wing extremist incidents and structures and inform the public about them. The Mobile Counseling Service Lower Saxony also supports civil society initiatives in their public relations.
